

License to Publish

Author(s):

List all authors in order.

Manuscript
Title:

Full title of the article submitted for publication.

1) The author(s) have submitted the above manuscript (the 'Article') for consideration for publication by Episteme Health Inc., subject to academic peer review and editorial decision-making.

2) Subject to editorial acceptance, the author(s) grant Episteme Health Inc. (the 'Licensee') a non-exclusive, irrevocable, worldwide license to reproduce, publish, distribute, transmit, preserve, and store the Article, in print, electronic, or any other form or medium of intellectual or scholarly communication that currently exists or may be developed in the future.

3) The author(s) grant to any person obtaining a copy of the Article from the Licensee, whether directly or indirectly, the right to use the Article in accordance with the terms of the following public license:

- Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International (CC BY 4.0)
- Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial (CC BY-NC 4.0)
- Another license that conforms to the requirements of the author's institutional or government employer. Please specify:

4) The author(s) further agree to provisions of the publisher's Copyright and Fair Dealing Policy. In particular, the author(s) grant, in circumstances where the public license chosen above does not apply, to any person obtaining a copy of the Article, the right to use, share, adapt, or reproduce a reasonable portion of the article for medical research, education, scholarship, non-profit or charitable purposes, or any fair dealing purpose outlined in the Australian Copyright Act 1968 free of charge. For the purpose of this clause, a reasonable portion shall be the greater of:

- a) That which is allowed by law; or
- b) The greater of 250 words or 20% of an article's word count; plus
- c) The greater of 2 figures or 40% of an article's figures and tables.

For Articles licensed under a CC BY-NC 4.0 License, any reproduction and redistribution must be free of charge, at-cost, or at no additional charge when included in a paid product or service.

5) The author(s) authorise the Licensee to distribute the metadata of the Article for free use by any party for any purpose using a CCo Public Domain Dedication or similar license. For the purposes of this agreement, metadata refers to information about the article such as author details, title, journal, publication date, funding details, and references as defined by Cross-ref metadata schema and other scholarly communication services and libraries.

6) The author(s) retain the copyright in the Article and may exercise any of those rights that they have not granted exclusively to the Licensee, including but not limited to, reproduction, distribution, adaptation, or sublicensing. The author(s) retain the right to archive or republish any version, including the final published version, of the Article on their personal website, institutional repository, subject repository, or in any other publication or medium of their choice at any time prior to or after publication.

7) The author(s) retain responsibility for considering permissions requests from third parties (e.g. for commercial use of a CC BY-NC licensed article).

8) In the event that the author(s) cannot be contacted using contact information listed in the Article or available on their current institution's website(s) for more than three weeks, the Licensee (or its appointee) may consider permission requests and receive the full amount of any payments or royalties for the permissions granted while the author(s) are unavailable.

9) The author(s) warrant and represent that:

- a) The author(s) are the sole copyright owners or have been authorised by the copyright owner(s) to assign the rights described in this agreement.
- b) The Article does not infringe on any intellectual property rights such as copyright, rights to use databases, surveys, instruments, trademarks or patents.
- c) The Article has not previously been published in any scholarly journal or book, whether generally considered legitimate or otherwise, or in any other scholarly format. This does not preclude previous presentation at scholarly conferences, as a preprint, or as part of an academic thesis.
- d) If the Article contains materials from other sources, such as figures, tables, or text, the Author(s) have obtained written permissions from the appropriate copyright holder(s) to use the materials in the Article and to grant the Licensee the right to publish the article or the Author(s) warrant that the use is covered by an exception to copyright, such as fair dealing. Any materials from other sources must be appropriately identified in the Article along with their original source and license information.
- e) The Article meets the highest standards of scientific and scholarly integrity and contains no data that has been fabricated, falsified, or misrepresented, and no text that is plagiarised from other sources, or quoted or paraphrased without attribution. Any experimental procedures or observations are faithfully and truthfully described in the Article.

- f) Moreover, to the extent necessary, the author(s) have complied with all applicable ethical codes of conduct, especially those related to research involving animal subjects or human participant and all necessary ethical approvals were obtained.
- g) Nothing in the Article is defamatory, libellous, or violates any human, personal, legal, or moral rights that may potentially expose the Licensee to legal action or adverse publicity.
- h) All listed author(s) have made substantial intellectual contributions to the Article in accordance with disciplinary norms, the guidance of the International Committee of Medical Journal Editors, Committee on Publication Ethics, and the policies of their institutions, funders, and governments.
- i) No person who meets the criteria for authorship has been excluded from the author list and that each author has agreed to their position on the author list.
- j) The author(s) have used their legal name or a name by which they are recognisable in their professional lives. The author(s) have listed no honorary author, ghost authors, non-existent authors, or hoax authors in the author list.
- k) The corresponding author has taken steps to ensure that the Article and any associated data meets all applicable ethical, disciplinary, or research standards and shall be the guarantor of the integrity of the Article.
- l) Any person mentioned in the Acknowledgements of the Article has agreed to being acknowledged using the text included in the Article.
- 10) The author(s) indemnify the Licensee from any legal action that may arise from the Licensee's decision to publish the Article or for any editorial action taken at the author(s) request.
- 11) The author(s) shall cooperate with the Licensee should any legal action arise from the publication of the Article, including providing the Licensee access to any relevant documents, records, or any information in the author(s) possession or that the author(s) may reasonably control or obtain.
- 12) The author(s) acknowledge that as the copyright holder they retain responsibility for initiating any legal action against third parties that have infringed upon their intellectual property contained in the Article, which will be at their (or their institution's) expense. The Licensee agrees to share any information and to cooperate fully with the author(s) (as described above) should it become aware of any infringement or if the author(s) initiate legal action against third parties that have infringed upon their intellectual property contained in the Article.
- 13) The author(s) have read and understood the Licensee's policies on corrections and other notices, such as expressions of concern and retractions contained in the Licensee's author guidelines and elsewhere. Substantive changes to Article content or changes to Article metadata require a public notice describing the change in accordance with the Licensee's Cross-mark Policy.
- a) The author(s) agree that the Licensee may issue an expression of concern if the Licensee becomes aware that there are substantive concerns about the validity or integrity of the Article.
- b) If no progress has been made towards resolving an expression of concern for more than 6 months then the Licensee may retract the Article. No progress may be defined by the author(s) taking no action to validate or replicate their findings, an institutional investigation where no activity has occurred, or where an institutional investigation has not been able to resolve the concerns and no new investigation has been opened.
- c) For concerns that were raised by third parties, the Licensee will make at least 3 attempts to contact the author(s) via the corresponding author and allow at least one month to receive a reply for each attempt.

d) If there are findings of research misconduct or findings that relevant codes of scientific conduct have been breached, the Licensee may immediately retract the Article even if the breaches did not constitute misconduct.

e) The Licensee may also retract the Article for any reason of scientific or scholarly integrity, for breaching any of the Licensee's policies, or for non-compliance with the terms of this agreement.

f) The Licensee will make at least 3 attempts to contact the author(s), via the corresponding author, to agree on the wording of the retraction notice. The retraction notice must give reasons for the retraction notice, be publicly accessible, and detail whether individual authors agreed with the retraction, disagreed with the retraction, or could not be contacted.

g) If the author(s) do not agree to a retraction or other editorial notice, they have the right to a response of up to 750 words.

h) Where author(s) initiate a retraction for errors not involving misconduct or breaches of scientific codes of conduct (honest error), the Licensee will endeavour to expedite the consideration of corrected findings if the author(s) choose to submit them to the journal.

i) The author(s) waive their right to take any legal action against the Licensee due to any editorial notice, provided that the procedure described in this agreement is followed.

14) This agreement shall be governed by, and construed in accordance with, the federal and state laws applicable in the state of Victoria, Australia.

15) Unless any addenda or alterations to this agreement have been discussed with the Licensee and agreed to in writing, they do not form a part of this agreement.

- The corresponding author declares that they have been authorised, in writing, to sign on behalf of all authors and can provide the Licensee with this documentation upon request.
- Each author will sign the agreement separately.

Corresponding Author Signature

Author Name & Signature

Author Name & Signature

Author Name & Signature

Author Name & Signature

Author Name & Signature

Author Name & Signature

Electronic signatures are accepted. If signing by hand, please print name and date.